From the Pastor's Desk . . .

This past week, I read an interesting observation about "work" in an article by John W. Martens entitled "The Work of the Kingdom," which appeared in America Magazine. He wrote:

"Our evaluation of work is equivocal. A person without work is in a precarious situation, financially and emotionally, and being jobless can erode a sense of worth. But those lucky enough to have jobs seem always to be plotting when to retire. Although work is sometimes a burden, it is always necessary. The tension between the need to work and the desire to leave it behind is inherent in the human condition."

My first thoughts were of all the folks who have been unemployed in the last six years. I could sense their feelings of despair and discouragement. Many of them always believed, even at the depth of the recession, that surely there was some kind of job out there for them, because they had to support their families. Then, there are always the folks who dream of retirement, myself included, even though I have no idea what I would do, should that day ever come. All of us cannot wait until the work day is over, or when Friday should arrive. Poor old Job in today's first reading has nothing over all us folks who are part of the work force.

Work is important and it is a terrible thing to be without. In our time, though, I think it is still important to consider why Sunday used to be a day of rest. On Sunday, we are called to our higher purpose, our first purpose - to know God and to learn how to serve our neighbor. The first and most important work of the disciples is to love God and neighbor. A day without the "drudgery" of work (as Job put it) is important. It frees us for our other, our most important purpose in life. In light of our busy, seven-day-a-week schedules, I offer this food for thought. The Church, in the Middle Ages, mandated Sunday as a day of rest, so that slaves, serfs, and other workers did not have to view their job as the only or main purpose of their lives.

Have a good week,
Fr. Bill Arnold

World Marriage Sunday, February 8. The love of husband and wife, and the love present in families is a gift from God. It needs to be nurtured, protected, and strengthened. On this World Marriage Sunday, the Church prays for all married couples, that they take needed and necessary time to reaffirm their marriage promise to each other. Living this commitment is a task for a lifetime. We also need to keep those preparing for marriage in prayer. These young people need a strong faith in God to live out their vows they are about to exchange with each other. Let us also pray for troubled and broken marriages. These couples need our prayers for healing and forgiveness in their lives.

From the Piano Bench. Lent. What is the first thing that comes to mind when you hear the word "Lent?" For all of us, it is pretty much "Ugh!" In an attempt to make the season of Lent more prayerful and seem less full of drudgery, we will be using three new hymns throughout the season of Lent. These three hymns will be used during the preparation of gifts time and, hopefully, will help draw us more into a spirit of prayer. The hymns are #650 "These Alone," #652 "Hold Us, Jesus" and #660 "Turn My Heart, O God." Take a few minutes before Mass and read the words of the hymns. Pray the words of the hymns as you sing them, and hopefully, your spiritual journey will be enriched this Lent.

Are you looking for a prayerful way to help those in need?

Our St. Vincent de Paul Society is searching for fellow parishioners who would like to pray for the people whom we assist. The parish is always very generous with needed food and monetary donations, but we want to go one step further.

If you would be interested in lifting up prayers for an individual or family whom we have assisted, please call Anne or Bill Heinmiller for details at 475-3390. Thank you for helping in this spiritual ministry.

St. Vincent de Paul members want to thank our parishioners who contributed $320.67 last weekend through the "door" collection after both Masses. The call for help with rent, utilities and food is constant. We pray that you, our parishioners, and those we serve receive God's blessing and grace to face the concerns and problems of daily life.
